Nixon, Cox move toward collision

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox moved today toward a head-on collision that could imperil the tapes' compromise the President worked out with the leadership of the Senate Watergate committee.

Cox scheduled a 1 p.m. EDT news conference.

"I cannot be a party to such an arrangement," Cox said in a statement issued on the heels of Nixon's announcement that he had agreed to prepare a summary of the tapes to be verified by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss.

Nixon said he personally would prepare the summary and it would be given to U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, who ordered the President last Aug. 29, to give him the nine tapes subpoenaed by Cox, and to the Senate Watergate committee.

Nixon said he would not ask the Supreme Court to review a Court of Appeals decision upholding Sirica's order and he directed Cox to halt efforts to enforce his subpoena.

Cox issued a statement saying that if he complied with the President's instructions it "would violate my solemn pledge to the Senate and the country...I shall not violate my promise."

The special prosecutor said he would inform the courts that "no steps are being taken to turn over the important notes, memoranda and other documents that the court orders require."

It was understood that the President, who pointedly referred to Cox as "an employe of the executive branch," was ready to fire the prosecutor if he continued to press his court battle.

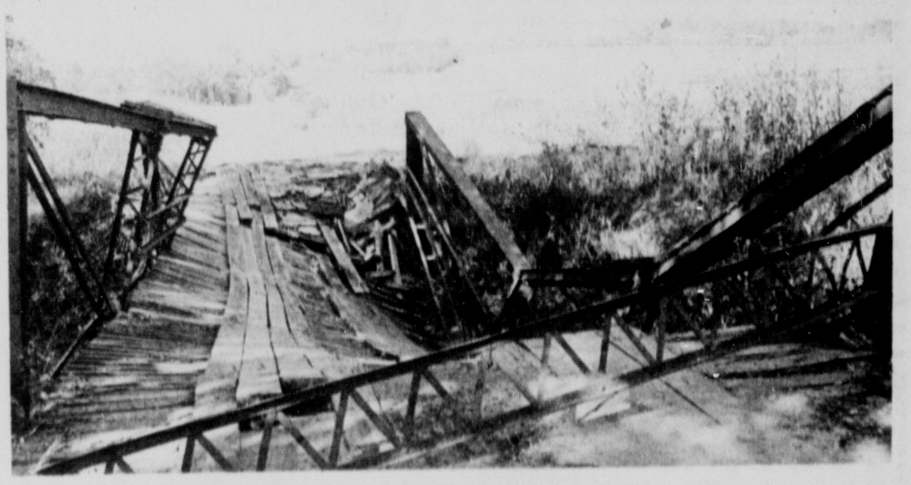
The President said he had the support of Sens. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., the senior members of the Senate Watergate committee for his decision to let Stennis listen to the tapes.

Baker called it "a good decision and in the best interest of the country."

But Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., another member of the Watergate committee, disagreed. "I reject the hollow deal to release a summary of the evidence rather than the evidence itself," he said.

But a key figure in the proposed compromise was Sirica and he remained silent.

It was understood he had not been consulted by the President before the White House statement was issued.



Bridge collapses

Albert R. Middleton of Sikeston escaped injury Friday when this steel frame bridge with a wooden bottom collapsed when he drove a truck loaded with concrete over it, causing the truck to run off the bridge and overturn. The bridge is over Caney Creek three miles south of New Hamburg on the Oran- New Hamburg road.

Legislature urged to move slowly on 'no-fault'

The Missouri Legislature was urged to move slowly in considering the passage of a Missouri no- fault driver's insurance law at a public hearing held Friday at Ramada Inn.

The public is concerned about insurance rates and the number of accidents, Attorney Don Dickerson of Cape Girardeau told the House of Representatives Insurance subcommittee holding the hearings. The subcommittee should take a closer look to see if no- fault is the right way to reduce rates, or determine if there is a better way.

At the opening of the hearing, Rep. Walter Meyer of St. Louis County, subcommittee chairman, said seven different no- fault proposals were introduced before the legislature last year.

He said the House Insurance Committee found that so little was known about the concept and statements about it varied so widely that the subcommittee was appointed to ferret out the truth.

Meyer said he thinks the no- fault system has been overplayed and will not do what many people think.

What the subcommittee wants to do, Meyer said, is to create a model bill, one that would contain- no fault provision and provide protection for the policy holder to have the right to sue if there is permanent disability or death.

Meyer added that under the bill being considered, automobile damage from a collision will not be paid unless the driver has collision insurance or is injured. The bill may require the insured to accept or reject collision insurance in writing.

New Madrid County Prosecuting Attorney Hal Hunter told the subcommittee the public is concerned with the delay in payments and insurance rates.

"I'm not convinced no-fault will solve the latter problem," he said.

Hunter said he believes any no- fault legislation must provide the right for the injured party to recover damages in case of permanent injury.

Rep. Daniel O'Toole of St. Louis said the bill the subcommittee is considering would allow suit for whole or partial disfigurement, permanent disabling injury or death.

Dickerson told the committee that there has never been a grassroots movement for no- fault insurance. He said the public has several misconceptions about no- fault insurance, including the belief that it will eliminate the need for lawyers, speed up payment and lower rates.

Actually, he said it only provides civil court immunity against the driver as a consequence of his actions.

Dickerson said the bill was being sold like a bar of soap and that it was one of the greatest hoaxes of all time.

It won't solve the insurance problems in the state, he said. Instead, he said, it would enable insurance companies to make more money by eliminating court suits.

Stay out of Mideast fight, Burlison says

MALDEN — Tenth District Rep. Bill D. Burlison of Cape Girardeau said today "the lessons of Vietnam should be fresh enough to keep us out of the war in the Middle East."

Burlison was a participant in the legislative training seminar sponsored by United Methodist Women of the Poplar Bluff- Sikeston District.

Burlison mentioned the results of his 1973 questionnaire on the war issue in which 11,000 families responded to questions before the beginning of the most recent Arab- Israeli conflict.

Burlison cautioned that some people could have changed their minds about the issue after start of the war.

The question and the response to it by percentage included:

If Israel should be attacked and her survival threatened, the U. S. should:

A. remain neutral, 50 per cent.

B. provide food, supplies and military equipment, 38 per cent.

C. provide troops and/or air support, 10 per cent.

D. no opinion, 2 per cent.

The Democratic congressman also discussed a number of pending legislative matters and responded to questions.

Bootheel farm families to be honored Nov. 20

Tickets are available for the annual Farmer's Recognition Banquet to be held at 6:30 p.m. Nov. 20 at Ramada Inn, Highway 62 East at the Interstate 55 interchange.

The banquet will honor 16 farm familes from Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid and Stoddard counties, and the program will include slide presentations of the winning families' farms. More than 350 people are expected to attend, banquet officials say.

Bob Hale of Sikeston will be master of ceremonies and featured speaker will be Ted McGuire, president of Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis.

McGuire, born and raised on a farm in Alabama, attended Auburn University at Auburn, Ala., and taught vocational agriculture before becoming a field representative for Production Credit Association.

Later, he became a field representative for FICB, then a vice president, executive vice president and finally president.

The Jaycee Outstanding Young Farmer Award will be presented this year, along with a special award by the Chamber of Commerce to an agri-business who has made an outstanding contribution to agriculture in Southeast Missouri.

Tickets may be obtained by telephoning the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce office, 471-2498; Herbert Bird, 471-6385; Ken Williams, 471-0342; or from members of the Rotary, Lions, Kiwanis, Exchange, Optimist and Jaycee clubs.

7 injured in 6 area accidents

Six traffic accidents Friday in the Bootheel area resulted in seven injuries, the highway patrol announced today.

A three- vehicle accident at 4:15 p.m. one and one-half miles south of Jackson on Highway 25 resulted in one injury.

The accident occurred when a southbound motorcycle, driven by Gary Clinton Hahn, 17, of Jackson, stopped to make a left turn and was struck from behind by a southbound auto driven by Rebecca Koeppel, 17, or Gordonville. Hahn's motorcycle was knocked across the centerline and was struck by a third car driven by Stephen Ford, 16, of Jackson.

Hahn received a broken left leg and was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Debra Sue Hoskins, 19, of Sikeston received minor head cuts at 5:45 p.m. one mile east of Miner on Highway 62 when a pickup truck driven by Dave Hodges, 34, of Sikeston pulled out to pass and sideswiped her car.

Miss Hoskins was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

A Kennett police car, en route to an accident with red light flashing and siren on, collided with another vehicle at 5:15 p.m., injuring both drivers.

The accident occurred on Independence Avenue in Kennett when a police car driven north by Jackie Jones, 33, of Kennett swerved to avoid hitting a vehicle that made a left turn in front of his squad car and struck a car driven by Mabel Mullins, 49, of Kennett. The patrol said Mrs. Mullins was waiting to pull onto the street at the time of impact.

Jones and Mrs. Mullins received minor injuries and were treated and released at Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

A Bragg City woman, Mona Lynn Newman, 20 was seriously injured at 11:45 p.m. on the west service road adjacent to Interstate 55 two miles south of Portageville when her car struck two calves in the road and ran into a ditch.

She was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti.

Ronnie Bowers, 15, address unavailable, was injured at 9:30 p.m. one mile north of Delta on Route N when the driver lost control of the car in which he was riding and overturned in a ditch. Bowers was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau for treatment of possible internal injuries. The driver, Michael Leggett, 17, of Chaffee, was not injured.

Wesley Mangles, 18, of Friedheim received a cut over one eye and possible internal injuries at 9:50 p.m. on Route E three miles east of Oak Ridge when his eastbound car ran off the road and struck an embankment.

He was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Satellite offers extra service

By MARY NOLEN

"A new Missouri Highway Patrol satellite office in Sikeston is just another way of providing service to the people," says Lt. W. E. Lemonds, the commanding officer.

The office, located at 111 Edward St., is designed to act as a communications link and eventually is expected to become a full-scale troop headquarters. The satellite office serves Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Bollinger, Cape Girardeau and Perry Counties.

The office is the first of its kind and is part of an experimental plan initiated by Col. Samuel Smith, superintendent of the state patrol.

"We're making do with what we have," Lemonds commented during an interview. "Everything we have in the office is from another building, and we are not going to build a large building or hire additional people unless we see a need to," he continued.

Instead of having to go to Troop E headquarters in Poplar Bluff to pick up supplies, troopers now will be able to pick them up at the Sikeston office.

Radio dispatchers in the sateillite office are on duty each day from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. "Later on, we hope to have the office open 24 hours a day," Lemonds remarked.

The office will eliminate the need for Sikeston area residents to make long distance telephone calls to get information from the patrol. Anyone who wants information about road conditions or a serious accident will be able to obtain it from the satellite office.

At present, a total of 28 men are working out of the satellite office. "We do not have any intention of taking any trooper off the road to work in the office," Lemonds stated, "and, as of now, we have no plans of hiring additional help for the office."

"The load on Troop E headquarters in Poplar Bluff just got too large and we had to expand," Lemonds said.

Although the office is operating on a trial basis, Lemonds said he believes the office will function efficiently.

The troopers will still receive their orders from the Poplar Bluff headquarters office, with the satellite office serving as a communications link.

"All we are trying to do is give better service to more people," Lt. Lemonds said.

The office opened about 45 days early in order to iron out any problems that might arise.

A similar office in Carthage has also been put into operation in the southwestern part of the state.

NATIONAL FOREST PRODUCTS WEEK

Most of us ride along on our spaceship Earth much the same as passengers of a jet airliner. We enjoy the comforts of the ride but are dismally ignorant of the powerful and complex machine that is carrying us.

By remaining ignorant about such things as natural resources, their use and conservation, pollution control progress and other matters involving the integrity of the environment, we can wreck the best efforts of those who truly understand the life support systems of the Earth. For example, in the name of conservation, we constantly hear politicians and far-out environmental purists advocate locking up forest lands in single - use recreation areas. Single use of commercial forest lands in this way merely chokes off one of our life support elements. By contrast, those who understand the nature of our forest resources advocate and practice multiple use. Timber is grown as a crop, while at the same time providing recreation. A well-managed productive forest contributes to pure air. A million acres of young, vigorously growing, high-yield forest will supply enough oxygen each year to meet the requirements of 18 million people. On the economic side, the forest industry provides full-time jobs for more than 1.5 million people with an annual payroll of more than $10 billion.

The United States needs its 510 million acres of commercial forest lands, because they are a vital part of the life support system of our Earth. Foreclosing on their productive use makes no more sense than expecting an airliner to carry us to our destination without engines. There is no better time to think of these things than National Forest Products Week, to be observed October 21-27 this year.

NATIONAL FILM DAY

If you go to the movies on Tuesday, Oct. 23, your ticket money won't just line some star's fancy pockets, pad a producer's bank account or pay for your local theater's new popcorn machine. Some of it might, but one-half of that day's box-office receipts from more than 4,000 movie theaters around the country will be donated to the American Film Institute (AFI) as part of the nation's first National Film Day.

AFI, created by the National Endownment for the Arts, is an organization dedicated to the advancement of film as one of the central, if not the pre-eminent, art forms of our time. Through its Center for Advanced Film Studies, now in its fifth year, AFI trains young film-makers in all aspects of cinema. An internship program through the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences allows 55 young interns each year to watch famous directors at work. AFI's "archive program" has preserved some 9,500 old films that were in danger of being lost forever. The institute has completed the first volume of a comprehensive history documenting every feature, short subject and news film produced in America since 1893. AFI's educational service assists the more than 600 U. S. colleges that offer film courses and is expanding its activities to include a touring film study program for American museums.

No wonder Charlton Heston, chairman of the board of the AFI, says: "It is my conviction that the future of motion pictures in this country will depend in large measure on the work of the American Film Institute." Many film companies and theater owners, Heston says, "see the AFI as a modern- day equivalent for training formerly provided by the studio system." Such celebrities as Jack Lemmon, Warren Beatty, Shirley MacLaine and Cicely Tyson are making publicity appearances to promote National Film Day.

AFI hopes to raise between $200,000 and $400,000 from the event. "It all depends on the films that are playing, the weather, and the news of the day," AFI's Mel Konecoff told Editorial Research Reports. If successful, AFI hopes in future years to send out special National Film Day programs made by its own students.

Later he received a second letter from his wife saying your mail must be censored because the sheriff and his deputies plowed up the field. She asked what she should do now. The reply came, "Plant the potatoes."

NIXON'S PAYMENT OF TAXES IS QUESTIONED

This has gone too far ... we're just not going to discuss my taxes. Next thing, they'll want to see my will."
—Pres. Richard M. Nixon.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 — A new controversy is buffeting the presidency. This time it concerns Richard M. Nixon, taxpayer.

Mr. Nixon's salary is $200,000 a year — almost $4000 a week. White House sources say he has paid a federal income tax each year that he has been President. But the question is, was it only a nominal sum?

The controversy arose when it was disclosed that the tax deductions on Mr. Nixon's California and Florida homes, together with a big writeoff for donating his personal papers to the Government, could have exceeded his presidential income.

If that was the case, Mr. Nixon could have been one of the 111 Americans in 1970 and the 72 persons in 1971 who had incomes of $200,000 or more and nevertheless paid no federal taxes.

When the computations appeared recently in the Baltimore Sun and New York Times, deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren seemed to leave open the possibility that Mr. Nixon had not paid any taxes in 1970 and 1971, by refusing to answer any questions about the stories.

"I am not going to discuss the President's income taxes," Warren said. "I think that is a personal matter, and I am just not going to discuss it."

A White House official of higher rank than Warren quickly assured reporters that Mr. Nixon had paid income taxes on each year's presidential salary. The official insisted on anonymity, and he refused to say how much Mr. Nixon had paid.

"His accountant prepared his (tax) returns, and he took the appropriate deductions, just as anyone does," the official told the Post-Dispatch. "His deductions worked out so that he paid taxes."

The Providence, R. I. Journal- Bulletin reported that Mr. Nixon paid a total of $1670 in federal income taxes in 1970 and 1971 and received $131,503 in refunds in those two years.

The newspaper said Government sources provided documents showing that the President and his wife paid $792 in 1970 and got a $72,614 refund. In 1971, the Journal - Bulletin said, they paid $878 in taxes and received a refund of $58,889.

The amount of the deductions was the central issue. An audit of Mr. Nixon's property transactions, made public by the White House Aug. 27, showed that the President had paid out large sums in interest and real estate taxes on his San Clemente and Key Biscayne homes.

In 1970, according to the audit, he paid $81,000 in interest on the loans for the purchase of his California property and about $21,000 in California real estate taxes. The interest and property- tax figures for his Florida home that year were about $12,500 and $2780.

Moreover, the White House has said that Mr. Nixon claimed an income tax deduction for the collection of personal papers that he donated to the National Archives in 1969. A Chicago book dealer, Ralph G. Newman, appraised the value of the collection at $576,000.

Under the tax laws that were in effect at the time Mr. Nixon made the donation, he could claim a tax deduction of up to 30 per cent of his adjusted gross income in 1969 — the year the donation was made — and up to 50 per cent in each of the next five years.

Thus, he could have claimed a charitable deduction of $100,000 in 1970. Together with the interest and property-tax payments of about $117,000 on the California and Florida properties, his total deductions of about $217,000 would have exceeded his presidential salary.

If these amounts were claimed, Ira L. Tannebaum, director of Tax Analysts and Advocates, a public- interest law firm in Washington, told the Post- Dispatch that "it is 99 per cent sure that the Nixons paid no federal income tax for 1970."

The White House statement that Mr. Nixon did pay some income taxes therefore raised the question whether the deductions were held to a level that resulted in only a small, nominal tax.

The audit of the President's property transactions stated that an additional $85,876 in interest on the California loan was due Dec. 15, 1970, the day that Mr. Nixon sold 23 acres of his San Clemente estate to two wealthy friends, Robert H. Abplanalp and Charles G. (Bebe) Rebozo.

The audit report said that this money was paid subsequent to the sale of the land, indicating that some of the interest payment might have been applied to Mr. Nixon's 1971 taxes. Warren said that he believed part of the money had been paid in 1970 and part in 1971.

The regular interest and property taxes on the California and Florida properties totaled about $52,000, according to the audit. In addition, Mr. Nixon could have claimed an additional $100,000 from the donation of papers.

If as much as $50,000 of the $35,876 interest payment was paid in 1971, the President's total deductions again would have exceeded his salary.

Moreover, the audit listed another interst payment of $113,000 due in 1971 and 1972, without making clear how much of it was to be paid in each year.

It was apparent, however, that if Mr. Nixon wanted to, he could have claimed large deductions in 1971 and 1972.

The figures in the audit do not tell the whole story. The donation of his papers to the National Archives enabled him, if he chose, to claim a deduction of about $55,000 in 1969 — 30 per cent of 11 months' salary — and $100,000 in each of the years 1970 through 1974.

In addition, Mr. Nixon made a gift of personal papers to the National Archives in 1968. Newman, the Chicago expert who appraised both donations, told the Post-Dispatch that he had put a value of about $80,000 on the earlier gift.

This could have been claimed as a deduction in the taxable years 1968 through 1973. Together, the two collections gave Mr. Nixon a maximum potential tax deduction of more than $650,000.

The two collections, consisted of papers, manuscripts, tape recordings and other material from Mr. Nixon's polticial career prior to his election as President in 1968. The first collection contained 41,300 items and the second consisted of about 600,000 items.

Tax Analysts and Advocates has challenged the validity of the second donation as a tax deduction.

The Tax Reform Act of 1969 abolished virtually the entire tax deduction for persons who donate their papers to institutions. After July 25, 1969, donors could claim only the original value of the papers, not the increase in their value.

A study by Tax Analysts and Adovates asserted that Mr. Nixon did not actually convey the 600,000- item collection to the National Archives before July 25, 1969.

A chattel deed donating the papers was kept in the office of Frank DeMarco, one of the President's personal lawyers in California, until April 1970 and then was sent to the National Archives, the study said.

As of July 30, 1973, the General Services Administration had refused to sign the deed transferring title to the papers, the study said.

A White House spokesman said earlier this year that Mr. Nixon had claimed a tax deduction in 1969 for the donation of the second collection, but he refused to say how much the President claimed.

As far as is known, the Internal Revenue Service allowed the claim. It is assumed that Mr. Nixon carried forward the donation as a tax deduction on his 1970, 1971 and 1972 tax returns, but whether he claimed the maximum 50 per cent of his adjusted gross income has not been determined.

The White House said that virtually all of Mr. Nixon's income was derived from his presidential salary, with the exception of small amounts of interest on some savings accounts. The President told a press conference Sept. 5 that he owned no socks or bonds.

Mr. Nixon apparently did not pay a capital gains tax on the $1,240,000 that he realized from the sale of 23 acres of his San Clemente property to Abplanalp and Rebozo.

At the Sept. 5 press conference, the President said that some accountants argued that a capital gains tax was due on the transaction and some argued that no tax was due.

He said the Internal Revenue Service audited his income tax returns for 1971 and 1972 and "did not order any change."

"If it had, I would have paid the tax," Mr. Nixon said.

Warren's refusal to discuss the President's tax returns was ordered by Mr. Nixon himself. According to White House sources, the President told his press spokesman that "this has gone too far."

"I spent a good deal of money having an audit prepared (of his property transactions) and then these fellows (reporters) use those figures to do stories about my taxes," Mr. Nixon was quoted as saying.

"We're just not going to discuss my taxes," the Presiden said. "Next thing, they'll want to see my will."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
One Woman's War Against Gulf's Angola Policies

WASHINGTON-- In a world beset by war and Watergate, a determined grandmother has stood up to a powerful oil executive over Gulf Oil's practices in faraway Angola. The story, as it has unfolded in their private correspondence, is an American morality tale worth printing.

The grandmother, Elizabeth Jackman of Arcadia, Calif., a Gulf stockholder, read a newspaper story criticizing her company for supporting the Portuguese colonials against the oppressed blacks in Angola. She protested.

The executive, B. R. Dorsey, president of the multibillion- dollar corporation, heeded the voice from the crowd and tried to assuage her. She wound up going to Angola, a lone stockholder on a fact- finding mission, where Gulf promised she would see for herself the company's benevolence toward the blacks.

Her private crusade began in April 1972, when she set aside her family duties long enough to fly to the Gulf stockholders' meeting in Pittsburgh. She had a question.

BRUSH— OFF

"Could not Gulf," she asked politely, "be more responsive than it is to the needs of the Africans?" But the Gulf brass gave her the brush- off.

Bothered by this, she wrote an acidly civilized letter to the corporate boss himself. The stockholders meeting, she complained, had been a "dismal, joyless affair, lacking in taste, sensitivity and humor. I had believed that (it) would be an occasion for the exchange of ideas. I now recognize the extent of my naivete."

The Gulf executives, she wrote, were "sitting there like robots...clapping together (at) the same beat. I heard a beat from a different drummer. Why didn't Gulf...explore a more creative position in Angola; (It) brought out the Bella Abzug in me."

The earnestness of her appeal stirred the busy Gulf president. "I must begin by apologizing for (the meeting's) rigidity." Dorsey responded. "I am sorry it seemed 'dismal and lacking in taste.' We must improve the way we conduct future meetings...I am...abashed."

PAID OWN WAY

As for her complaints about Angola, he invited her to see the Gulf operation there for herself at company expense. Mrs. Jackman accepted the invitation but insisted upon paying her own fare.

The obliging Dorsey personally ordered detailed briefing papers be sent to her. These showed that Gulf has a formidable $209 million investment in Angola. Black employment at the oil facilities, according to the company statistics, was up 10 per cent in one year, with pensions and other programs above the Angolan average.

Loaded down with corporate materials, the determined grandmother flew off to "see for herself" the Gulf facilities in both Angola and Nigeria. She received the well wishes of Dorsey from his executive suite.

"This letter probably will arrive too late to have permitted me to wish you a safe and worthwhile trip to Africa," he wrote, "but not too late to be welcoming you back and to ask you to share with me your reactions to your trip."

'LUDICROUS, FEEBLE'

Upon her return, accordingly, Mrs. Jackman shared her reactions with Mr. Dorsey. Gulf's "Angolan efforts seem ludicrous and feeble," she wrote.

She had been impressed with Gulf's efforts to assist the black government in Nigeria with the "transition from colonialism to self-determination." But she had found this approach "totally lacking" in Angola. "The one black" in the Angola Gulf management, she wrote, had been shipped out of town "apparently because of friction with the Portuguese staff."

She had been briefed by Gulf on how kind the Portuguese were to Angolan blacks. Instead, she had found laborers on a coffee plantation kept behind barbed wire "in one- room dormitories...separated from their families, cooking the allotted food on open fires."

The few whites in Angola, in contrast, lived in a world of golf courses, swimming pools and luxurious homes with well-stocked liquor cabinets.

'SWIMMING POOLS'

"Importing large American cars for the Gulf staff," she wrote Dorsey, "seems quite unnecessary." The practice "fosters the idea of limitless American money...The big cars are locally dubbed 'swimming pools.'"

Some of Gulf's employes in Angola, she charged, regarded blacks with "the outmoded southern USA...redneck attitude."

She called upon Gulf to support small black businesses, to seek increased black enrollment in farm and technical schools and to promote better understanding of black liberation efforts in Angola.

"The priority given to construction of clubs for the Gulf staff, mainly Europeans, puts an emphasis on importing a lifestyle completely inappropriate to black Angola today," she wrote.

NO REPLY

The disappointed Dorsey, however, didn't reply. Instead an aide, William Cox, who accompanied Mrs. Jackman on her African tour, wrote back that "we both saw the same things but interpreted them quite differently."

Saddened, the crusading grandmother sold her Gulf stock and joined a church-sponsored boycott of Gulf products.

Footnote: The dissident stockholder, nevertheless, had an impact on Gulf policies. Company officials nave now recommended ending the use of large American cars in Angola, promoting greater black enrollment in technical schools and making more puchases from small black businesses.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Neither Gandhi Nor God: Cesar Chavez' National Boycott Plans Run Into Sharp Fire from Other Labor Chiefs

BAL HARBOUR, Fla.--- Chrisma or not, Mexican peasant short or no, ethereal or not, farm union leader Cesar Chavez is no hero amongst his peers--- labor's own high council which has poured almost $6 million into his Chicano organizing campaign in a decade.

Behind tightly closed doors of the AFL- CIO Executive Council room here, Chavez tried in his quiet eloquence to swing the powerful labor federation leaders behind a national boycott of three wine companies, lettuce and grapes. He wanted to hit the streets and all the country's stores that don't handle his United Farm Workers Union black eagle label produce.

He failed. Fact is, in an equally quiet fashion, he got clobbered. One labor leader said after the session, "Trouble with Chavez is he wants to be a czar with a halo."

Another charged him with attempting to build a cause, not a union. Still another later said he's "irresponsible. Every time he wants to march on Sacramento (Calif.) he tries to pull the workers out of the fields. We can't stand for that, not in the fields nor the big cities where our people are employed."

One of the labor movement's most powerful leaders, philosophically devoted to organizing the farm workers whom he calls "the remaining poor," said: "Cesar thinks he's Gandhi, the Messiah and God all wrapped in one. And you can't build a union that way. He's more for getting the college kids out there shaking the can than being part of the labor movement. We've spent more on the farm workers and given them more support than on any one such boycott and organizing effort in my ken."

To the national labor chiefs, Chavez isn't a team player. Their objections are not to the money they've spent, nor the energy nor the trauma of pushing back the Teamsters, nor of the regret over having to battle Teamsters general president Frank Fitzsimmons who most of them like, but over Chavez's failure to realize how many jobs he can kill with his boycotts.

There was anger inside the council chamber, for example, over Chavez's eagerness to picket and boycott three wine-makers' firms. One of these corporations, the Gallo company of Modesto, Cal., also produces bottles. Thus if Chavez did succeed in swinging the high command behind his proposed boycott, he would disemploy tens of thousands of workers. These are members of the Wine and Distillers Union, the Glass Bottle Blowers and the Retail Clerks. Even an Amalgamated Meat Cutters division.

Most of these unions' leaders resented Chavez's proposal for national AFL-CIO boycotts of the wineries, lettuce and grapes. They said the pay is not an issue, nor are working conditions. They have contracts with the companies. Why then should they support Chavez's strategy of boycotting them and picketing "the whole store."

Many wine- makers own no land. Don't grow their own grapes. They buy them. If these were boycotted, the wineries would be crippled and jobs would be hit right on down the line.

And in the secrecy of the council session, they told Chavez like it is--- they want to help him but they don't want to break contracts nor see their people go on welfare rolls.

Nor do they want to continue to fight the Teamsters in general and Fitz in particular. He and AFL- CIO president George Meany are in constant telephone communication. And in one case the Teamsters cooperated with the Justice Department in ending a farm front shakedown. And Fitz has played "a crucial, not to say an indispensable role" in the peacemaking between the Teamsters and the farm workers according to one of the Teamsters' severest critics.

So the council decided that there would be a coordinating committee to work with Chavez. And that the final decision on whether there would be a product boycott or the picketing of the "whole store," or if there should be any such action at all would be made by Meany and his second- in- command, secretary- treasurer Lane Kirkland.

But don't mistake the criticism of Chavez and don't misinterpret the implication of such words as "it's about time Chavez acted like an adult." Meany is in this farm organizing drive to the hilt. And treasury.

Cesar Chavez sees himself a man of history. And he well may be. The farm workers throughout this nation are 5 million strong. The potential is enormous for labor. It's really one of the few fronts left for the new Department of Organization and Field Services to swing into.

The name of the game is not only organizing the farm workers--- it's the sympathy which can be aroused on the campuses and among the nation's youth. Even if the United Farm Workers organizes a few hundred thousand, the "cause" will swing in many more emotional forces. The political implications are significant.

The political power is much to be sought after. Few realize how many farm workers there are as far east as Michigan, Pennsylvania and New York.

So the attempt to mature Chavez isn't an effort to send him out to pasture. These men of labor, gathered for their tenth constitutional convention, are pragmatists. They simply want Cesar Chavez to be more effective than emotional, more a trade unionist that urban economic guerrilla fighter.

Ulm elected to 1974 conference

JEFFERSON CITY — The Corrections Task Force of the Missouri Association for Social Welfare has announced that Lawrence J. Ulm, Coordinator, MASW Corrections Projects, was elected the Missouri delegate to the 1974 National Conference Planning Committee of Volunteers in Probation, a division of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

Ulm is responsible for the Volunteers in Corrections Project, a subgrant from the State Board of Probation and Parole, for eastern and southeastern Missouri. He was named Missouri delegate by various heads of volunteer programs in the state. Ulm will be responsible for collecting and evaluating ideas and suggestions from the state's volunteer directors and transmitting this data into the national planning sessions for the 1974 VIP-NCCD Conference.

"I am very gratified by the confidence my colleagues have given me," Ulm said. "Correctional volunteers are making a definite positive impact on the criminal justice system and Missouri is quickly becoming a leader in this area."

UFO follows car through city

An unidentified flying object with white and red flashing lights reportedly followed a car through Sikeston about 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Marcia Nolen of Charleston said she, her mother, grandmother and son were on their way to Sikeston and were just entering Miner when they noticed a flying object on the right side of the car. The object traveled about the speed of the car and wasn't very high or far from the car, Mrs. Nolen said.

She added that the white and red flashing lights were blinking faster than those on airplanes usually do and that she could see no wings.

She noticed no sound and could make out no specific shape, except that the object seemed large.

As they passed the airport, traveling west on East Malone Avenue, Mrs. Nolen said they waited for the object to land at Sikeston Memorial Airport, but it didn't. It continued at the same speed and in the same low flying position on the right side of the car.

Mrs. Nolen said the object followed them to the vicinity of the Cream Castle and, after that, they did not notice it again.

"I'm not stating it was anything from outer space," Mrs. Nolen said, "but I don't believe it was an airplane."

Education Week to be observed

American Education Week will be observed Sunday through Saturday throughout the nation.

Sikeston schools have no special plans, although bookmarks commemorating the week are scheduled to be distributed to elementary school children.

Open house will be held at the high school and kindergarten, although the events were not scheduled as a part of American Education Week.

The Sikeston High School Parent- Teacher Association will meet at 6:30 p.m. Monday at the high school, and parents will have a chance to visit the classrooms.

The airport kindergarten open house is scheduled Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. for the morning and afternoon sessions.

17 treated

Seventeen accident patients were treated Friday in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Donna Hubbert, 10, Oran, bruised nose when hit in face by a ball at school; Lee Hampton, 19, Sikeston, cut left thumb; Walter Gwin, 10, Sikeston, cut right second toe on lawnmower; and Michael Levart, 25, Hazelwood, bruised and scratched in truck accident.

Ann Landers

'Unclaimed jewels' must wait for men

Dear Ann Landers: Please forgive me for altering some of the facts in this letter to disguise my identity, but I just can't give it to you straight.

My uncle was lieutenant governor of the state 12 years ago. Every time my husband introduces me he says, "This is my wife, Gertrude. Her uncle was the lieutenant governor." Occasionally I catch a pained "so-what" look. I want to sink throught the floor. I never did care for that introduction but my husband seems to think it's appropriate.

According to him generals, senators, governors and other vips retain their titles even though they are no longer in office. He says it is not only correct, but pleasing. What about it, Ann? (P.S. I STILL don't like it.) --- Just Plain Gertrude

Dear J.P'G. : It is appropriate (and pleasing, I'm sure) to call a retired officer "General" or use the title "Governor" or "Senator" after the fact, but you are none of these, so why must your husband drag your uncle into the act? Does he feel you need a build-up? Or, does HE need it?

Tell him, in no uncertain terms, that you are content to be just his wife and that's the way you want to be introduced.

Dear Ann Landers: Help! Please. What is the kindest way for a young married couple with a child to tell their parents on both sides to cool it? We don't want to seem unkind or ungrateful.

How many times a day should they phone? How many Sundays in a row should be devoted to parents?

These are disturbing questions and we don't have the answers. Do you? --- Had It in Ohio

Dear Ohio: No. Nobody has. It depends on a varity of things about which I know nothing. How often do they call? How long do they talk? Do they drop in univited? Do they invite you to their home or do they just come to yours? How long do they stay? Do they "take over" your child? Do you accept financial help from them? Expensive gifts? Favors, such as "sitting," taking the child when you go away on weekends or vacations? Does your spouse like your parents? Are they demanding, boring, tiresome? Or are they good company?

Every young married couple should sit down and think about these things and come up with answers that make sense to them.

And before you arrive at any conclusions, please remember this: you will never regret it if you put youself out a little for your folks. Most parents have put themselves out a great deal for their children.

Dear Ann Landers: I have no tears of sympathy for that 40-year-old man who says it's too late for him to get dates. (Several girls turned him down and he was so hurt that he just gave up.)

A man always has a chance, no matter what his age. This is not true of a woman. I am 40 and have never been asked out by a normal, single man --- only married men, alcoholics and homosexuals who want a "cover." Such losers are a waste of time and I refuse to be bothered. But since I'm a woman I must wait to be asked out.

I wish that 40-year-old man who feels like a "reject" would as ME for a date. I'd accept so fast his head would swim. --- Unclaimed Jewel

Dear Jewwl: You and 500 other women who have written to me this week. What's the matter with you fellas out there, anyway? Get moving. And don't as ME for names and addresses. Do your own research.

Drugs. How much is too much? Is pot O.K.? Is L.S.D. too much? If you're on dope or considering it, get Ann Landers's new booklet "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (16cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Mrs. Butler to be guest of B&PW

PORTAGEVILLE-- The Business and Professional Women's Club will honor Mrs. Bertie Butler, 1973 Woman of the Year, at a tea Sunday at 2 p.m. in the New Madrid County Library, 209 E. Main St.

The event also marks the opening observance of National Business Women's Week, established by the National Federation of Business Women's Clubs Inc.

Sorority rush held

Barnyard Fantasies was the theme when Tau Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held a rush party Oct. 9 at the home of Mrs. Gene Collins, 710 Mimosa Drive. Mrs. Collins entertained 17 members, 24 guests and two guests of honor, Mrs. Lila Harwell, sorority sponsor, and Mrs. Jessie Taylor, chapter director.

The home was decorated with fall colors. A huge lighted jack- o- lantern greeted the guests upon entering, and small lanterns lit the stairway. Red and white checkered place mats, tablecloths and napkins complemented the tables, and gingham flowers of the same colors, handmade by the hostess, graced the fireplace.

The main serving table was centered with a matching centerpiece of gingham red and white flowers. Each table was lit by an old- fashioned kerosene lamp, and at the focal point of the room stood a large display of cotton. Cornstalks, pumpkins and gourds added to the country atmosphere, and a dinner of country ham and beans was served buffet style.

Myrtle Nunnelee, chapter president, served as mistress of ceremony, with the assistance of an old-fashioned dinner bell.

The Sour Mash, a local country and western music group, provided entertainment, along with several games of bingo. The door prize, a basket of home-canned foods, was won by Mrs. Dorothy Pennington.

Upon leaving, each guest was given a favor of a barnyard animal which had been handcrafted by Beta Sigma Phi members.

Marital communications fail for three reasons

By SHAREN K. HUNT
University of Missouri Extension

"We run out of things to talk about." "He (she) never tells me anything." "If you would only listen." These sounds of marital communication are all too familiar. The why or how come of this failure have been argued and analyzed by countless counselors or philosophers.

Some sense of order has been provided by Richard Klemer in his book, "Marriage and Family Relationships," says he detected three basic lacks.

Marital communication tends to fail because of a lack of ability, lack of desire, lack of selectivity, or sometimes because of all of these put together.

The lack of ability usually refers to the emotional meanings and the person's reaction to words, not necessarily their dictionary meaning. If, for example, the word "yellow" is mentioned in a mixed audience, almost all of the women will react with a pleasant feeling. The men will probably get a different feeling because of the way this word is used to describe cowardly males.

Communication, though, more often fails because of one's inability to communicate genuine attitudes and meanings, or to listen with the third ear.

Two people must want to communicate. Genuine communication involves not only the desire to share your feelings but also the desire to understand and accept the other's feelings as well.

A lack of selectivity, the third reason for marital communication failure, refers to the choice of topics, or the way, time, or place. Almost every child who has grown up in a family learns that its better not to ask Dad for favors until after dinner. Yet, it is amazing how often husbands and wives ignore this simple rule. As a matter of common sense, spouses must sometimes avoid talking about aggravating subjects.

Security may be the most important aspect of communication. It's the responsibility of the listener to provide an accepting climate that encourages open expression of feelings and thoughts. The other part of security in communication is up to the speaker, who should provide security for the listener as well. If we are afraid of offending someone or being offended, or of starting an argument, or fear that if we say what we really feel, we'll lose our partner's love, then communication will not and cannot be as it should.

For some, the richness of marriage comes from quiet calm, and talking isn't necessary for happiness. The pleasure comes from the partner's ability to transmit verbally or nonverbally the kind of ego reassurance that makes life worthwhile. This is the need meeting that creates and nurtures love.

Miss Huitt, Charles R. Ponchak marry Sept. 29

FRUITA, Colo.-- At 10 a.m. Sept. 29, Miss Debra Rae Huitt of Grand Junction and Charles Richard Ponchak of New Madrid, Mo., were united in marriage by the Rev. Robert Spear in a double- ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Everett E. Huitt of Grand Junction and Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Ponchak of New Madrid.

The altar was adorned with seven candelabras and arrangements of blue carnations and yellow daisies with yellow and blue streamers accented by tall palms on each end. Church aisles were lined with three branch candelabras with greenery, yellow daisies and blue carnations and yellow and blue streamers.

Dee Horts of Fruita accompanied Annette Henson of Grand Junction who sang "We've Only Just Begun" and "One Hand, One Heart" during the ceremony.

The bride was escorted by her father and mother who gave her in marriage. Her gown was white dotted Swiss, Juliet style, with empire waist, full gathered skirt, long puffed sleeves and a scoop neckline. She made and designed the gown.

Her headpiece was a crown of yellow and blue daisies and baby's breath. The veil was waist length and made by her mother. The bride carried a bouquet of yellow daisies, blue carnations, baby's breath and fern topped with a white dove.

Miss Robin Hewitt of LaJunta was maid of honor. She wore a long empire- style gown of blue and white organza. Her headpiece was of yellow and blue flowers, and her bouquet was identical to the bride's.

Jerry Downing of Grand Junction was best man.

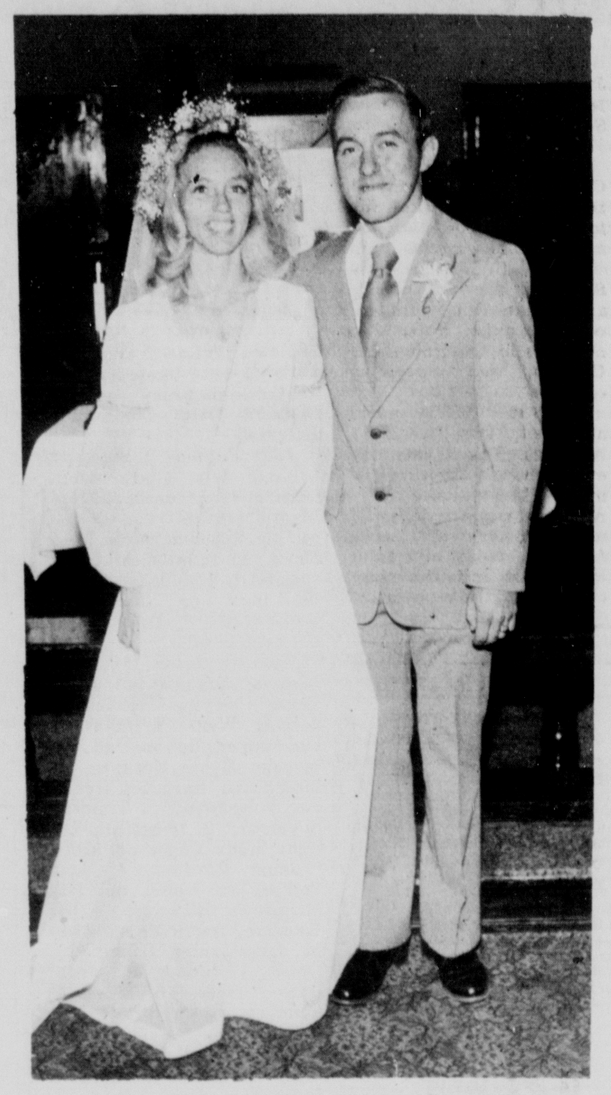
Guests were seated by John Peterson of Orvid and Mike Richardson of Grand Junction.

Linda Huitt, cousin of the bride, presided at the guestbook.

The bride's mother chose a street- length dress of beige lace and chiffon with a small-pleated skirt. The groom's mother wore a long- sleeved princess- style dress of pink with crocheted edging along the neckline and ruffled cuffs. Both wore corsages of yellow daisies and blue carnations with a white dove in the center.

A reception followed at the church with the traditional wedding cake topped with miniature bride and groom centering the bride's table. It was prepared by the bride's mother.

Assisting with the reception were Mrs. James Rainey, Mrs. Butel Huitt and Mrs. Darrel Huitt, aunts of the bride.



Mr. and Mrs. Charles Richard Ponchak

The couple honeymooned in eastern Utah and is now living in Denver. The groom is a graphysicist for Cities Service Oil Co.

On Friday preceding the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Ponchak hosted a rehearsal dinner in the Gold Room of the Bar X Lounge in Grand Junction.

After the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Huitt entertained guests with a buffet dinner at their home in the Redlands.

Agent attends meeting

Jerry Harlow and his wife Judi attended the 28th, National Soil Conservation Society of America meeting in Hot Springs, Ark.

Harlow is District Conservationist, employed by the Soil Conservation Service to assist the Scott County Soil & Water Conservation District.

The Soil Conservation Society is a private non-profit association of professional conservationist. It has 14,000 members in the United States, Canada, and 80 Foreign countries.

About 1,500 members attended the meeting in Arkansas. The theme of the event was plants, animals, and man. The purpose of the meetings was to discuss land use conservation problems facing us today and to learn the newest and best methods to deal with the problems.

Rice harvest under way

Rice, a little- grown crop in Southeast Missouri, is being harvested on the Harold Lumsden farm one and one half miles northeast of Essex by Lumsden, left, and James Sanders of Essex. Lumsden, who has 55 acres of rice, expects a yield of about 150 bushels per acre this year. Rice brought $2.50 per bushel last year, he added. Rice has approximately the same growing season as cotton and can only be grown in the same field two consecutive years, Lumsden explained.

Below norml temperatures forecast

By LEONARD F. HAND

PORTAGEVILLE— The Missouri Bootheel is again included in an area expected to observe below normal temperature over the 30- day period and ending in mid-November. The boundaries of above normal rainfall have been shifted to the north and east sufficiently to return the SeMo counties to the near normal category in the outlook.

High pressure advancing from the northwest is more likely to spread cool air into the region more frequently than in the early part of October. The stalling of systems well to the west of the Bootheel actually held temperature in the above normal average columns during the past three weeks. Predominant southerly flow was warm enough to offset the tendency for more than usual cloudiness.

That same pattern helped to reduce total volume of water delivered in at least 10 opportunities for showers since mid- September. With cooler and drier air feeding into the region more freely during the next 30 days, moisture for heavy rains may be less available when cold fronts cross the Bootheel to touch off showers.

Cotton still shows a lot of green leaf in many areas of Southeast Missouri. Agricultural advisories will outline periods of sunny and dry and warm weather most favorable for defoliation where that is still contemplated by producers.

The temperature trend for this period is not necessarily favorable for a killing frost earlier than usual, even through below normal averages are indicated. Climatology gives us a range from Oct. 30 across the northern boundaries of the Bootheel to about Nov. 20 over the southern fringe for the normal dates of the first moderate killing freeze. That includes a temperature range of 24 to 28 degrees.

The range of dates for normal occurrence of light killing freeze, 28 to 32 degrees, runs from about Oct. 20 in the north to Nov. 4 in the south.

Farmers should remember that these are readings taken in the shelter, and that temperatures at crop level in the open will often be cooler on nights conducive to freeze. Secondly, these are statistics formed by averaging the dates of first occurrence of temperatures each season that fall within the range specified.

While they may serve as a guide, probabilities for freeze are more closely tied to the arrival of a cold mass of air delivered by high pressure pushing out of the north. Extended outlooks, issued daily, will be our best guide to potential for killing freeze.

We are in that part of the season when normal monthly rainfall is on a slow rise from the mid- summer low point. In most years, normal is more than desirable for cotton and more than needed for other active crops. Wetting during the past week restored moisture to soils that will not be removed readily by cotton or soybeans at/or beyond their seasonal climax.

We can look for dews to be a regular feature much of the time, and ground fog can be expected to be an efficient moisture source to delay harvest schedules at times.

The Cotton Harvest Bulletin is being released from the National Weather Service Office For Agriculture at Portageville about 6:30 a.m. Monday through Friday, as a guide to drying.

Where bin- drying by unheated air is contemplated for grain harvested with high moisture content, some attention should be directed to potential for both dew and fog. During this period, the most humid air tends to concentrate near the surface of the ground where intake of outside air is drawn.

Some farmers have asked for sources of instruments to indicate relative humidity as a guide for turning on fans. We are attempting to fill the need by expressing the drying trends in the agricultural advisory in terms of relative humidity.

This item includes the time during the forenoon when relative humidity is expected to fall below 65 per cent, the lowest value expected during the day, and timing of the rise above 65 per cent in the evening.

Farmers desiring advice on how best to use this information are invited to contact me by phone, 379-5431, or by visit to the National Weather Service office at the Delta Center, Portageville.

Rainfall totals at Agricultural Weather Stations in the Bootheel since Sept. 15 range from 3.59 inches at Sikeston, to 3.02 at East Prairie, 2.70 at Portageville and 1.36 inches at Poplar Bluff. Missing reports prevent listing totals for Kennett, Charleston and Malden.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel as a whole during the period from Mid- October through Mid- November is 3.51 inches.

Normals from individual cities are:

Caruthersville, 3.50; Doniphan, 3.65; New Madrid, 3.68; Poplar Bluff, 3.52; Cape Girardeau, 3.34; Dexter, 3.56; Morehouse, 3.61; Parma, 3.47; Sikeston, 3.59.

Short term averages for other Bootheel points:

Advance, 3.24; Bloomfield, 3.67; Clearwater Dam, 3.38; Kennett, 3.64; Portageville, 3.54; Qulin, 3.76; Bernie, 3.73; Charleston, 3.71; Deering, 3.69; Malden, 3.37; Puxico, 3.45; Wappapello Dam, 3.55.

Normal weekly temperature and precipitation for this period is:

Week Ending: Oct. 24, normal maximum, 72, normal minimum, 48, normal precipitation, 1.06 inches; Oct. 31, normal maximum, 70, normal minimum, 44, normal precipitation, 0.91 inches; Nov. 7, normal maximum 64, normal minimum, 42, normal precipitation, 0.90 to 1.00; Nov. 14., normal maximum, 60, normal minimum, 38, normal precipitation, 0.80.

Good harvesting practices will net big crop dividends

By THOMAS A. BROWN, JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD— With price prospects for this year's cotton crop being as good as they are, a good job of harvesting the cotton crop will pay big dividends this season. In this article, I would like to discuss some harvesting practices which, if used, will help to maximize cotton profits.

Of course, the cotton picker should be in good mechanical condition, in proper adjustment, and operated in such a way as to hold harvest losses to a minimum. Results of a survey of harvest losses conducted behind 16 Stoddard County cotton pickers during 1971- 72 revealed losses which would have ranged from $3.84 to $25.92 per acre for an average loss of $13.76 per acre in cotton which would yield a bale per acre and sell for 32 cents per pound.

In addition to such cotton losses, mechanical breakdowns during the harvest rush can also be extremely costly. The person who operates the picker is one of the most important factors in doing an efficient job of harvesting the cotton crop.

Picking only when cotton is dry enough to pick is also one of the most important factors in doing a good job of harvesting cotton. To determine whether cotton is dry enough to pick, pick a handful, squeeze it tightly in your hand, and release the pressure on it. If the cotton fluffs out as you release the pressure, it is dry enough to pick. If not, it is too wet. Use only enough water on picker spindles to keep them clean.

Keep dry and wet cotton separated, and keep clean and trashy cotton separated. Seed cotton containing too much moisture and green trash will deteriorate in storage and thereby lower cotton quality. If a trailer should contain mixed qualities, tell your ginner so that he can gin accordingly. Allow your ginner to group your cotton with cotton of comparable quality so that the best possible job of ginning can be done.

Clean dirty lint off the picker basket before dumping. Clean picker head each time the basket is dumped. Remove oil and grease from picker parts that come in contact with cotton.

Select gear setting to fit yield and other field conditions, and operate picking unit and tractor in matching gears. Be sure picker is lined up with the row. Lower picker head into picking position before entering row, and enter row at full throttle. Do not raise picker head before leaving the row.

Two UMC guides entitled Guidelines for Harvesting Cotton With Spindle Type Pickers and Cotton Defoliation With Chemicals, which are available upon request at your County University of Missouri Extension Center, contain information which will help you to do a good job of harvesting cotton.

East Prairie member wins top FFA degree

EAST PRAIRIE — Milas R. Mainord of East Prairie received the American Farmer Degree Thursday at special ceremonies held during the 46th National Convention of the Future Farmers of America, in Kansas City.

He was one of 564 FFA members selected to receive the American Farmer Degree, highest degree of membership joins a select group representing about one per cent of all FFA members.

Milas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milas Rex Mainord of East Prairie.

The American Farmer Degree is presented only by the National Organization of the Future Farmers of America to members who have demonstrated exceptional agricultural and leadership ability. State FFA Associations are permitted to submit candidates for the American Farmer Degree based on total FFA membership in the state. The 564 members awarded the American Farmer Degree represent the highest achievement of more than 448,000 FFA members now enrolled in the nation's 7,798 high school vocational agriculture departments.

FFA members begin as "Greenhands" and after one year of membership may be advanced by the local chapter to the degree of "Chapter Farmer". The third degree, that of "State Farmer", is presented by the State FFA Association and is limited to no more than two per cent of the State's FFA membership in any one year. Only students who have earned the State Farmer Degree are eligible for the American Farmer Degree.

Conservation plan pays off

By JERRY HARLOW
Soil Conservationist

Now you can be a ('good guy') without wearing a white hat! How? Become a conservation minded landowner. It doesn't matter whether you live in town or in the country. The important thing is to plant the right kind of shrubs, trees, grass, and plants in the right places.

When you do this with a conservation plan, you are protecting your valuable soil and water resources. There's less soil loss from wind and water, less pollution of our streams and lakes, there's cleaner air to breathe, and you encourage more wildlife by providing them with more food and cover the year 'round, in fact, all living creatures benefit.

And when so many people and so much wildlife benefit from your conservation, you've just got to be considered a "good guy", white hat or not! Contact your Soil Conservation Service and find out all about conservation plans for your land.

Cattlemen pay for information

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Cattlemen's Association said Thursday it has paid $2,000 in reward money for information that led to the arrest and conviction of a cattle thief in southeast Missouri.

Mike Bauman, executive secretary, said a reward of $1,500 was sent to Kathryn Halbrook of St. Louis and a check of $500 was given to Gordon Nickelson of Caledonia, Mo. The two gave information that helped in the prosecution of a man charged with stealing cattle at Potosi.

Cattle belonging to Bob Collins of Potosi were returned to him as a result of the conviction. The sentence for the convicted man was a year in jail and a $500 fine.

Bill Sidwell, president of the association, said the two recipients of the reward "should be highly commended for their lack of fear to become involved."

Hunters should be show-offs

JEFFERSON CITY- The well- dressed deer hunter should look as conspicuous as John Wayne in the Miss America lineup for maximum safety.

It's all the same drab gray to a deer's color blind eyes, but flourescent orange, the brilliant "hunter orange," is highly recommended for Missouri's 200,000- plus deer hunters.

Colorado hunt

Two mule deer made a Colorado hunting trip an outstanding success. The hunters were four Sikeston men and a former Sikeston resident. Bob Taylor, 905 Patricia, brought down a 9 point buck, and Jim Lewis, shot a 14 pointer. In the picture are, from left, Gib Hutchcraft, 708 Hickory, Taylor, and Lewis. Not pictured are Charlie Rose of Sikeston and Herman Hoffschneider, formerly of Sikeston and now of Newport, Ark. The deer were shot in the Gunison National Forest. The four-day hunting trip began Oct. 13.

Deer poachers convicted

JEFFERSON CITY- Possession of a doe deer in closed season proved costly to a rural Conway man Oct. 9 when he was fined $500 in Dallas County magistrate court.

The man was arrested Oct. 2 and accused of shooting the doe at dusk that same evening. Two conservation agents, Larry Miller of Webster County, and Robley Sanders, district supervisor of agents from Laclede County, along with Highway Patrolman Jim Mooreland, made the arrest.

The case was one of several against deer poaches in the past month. Department of Conservation enforcement officials say the pace of illegal deer hunting is picking up.

Peak of the poaching season usually is just before the legal gun season, this year Nov. 17- 25.

In other recent cases, two Stone County men were fined $250 each for spotlighting deer. Three men were fined $150 each in Warren County for spotlighting. Two were convicted felons. A man was fined $500 and given a two year parole on a 90 day jail sentence for killing a deer on the Schell- Osage Wildlife Area in St. Clair County.

The Department of Conservation has distributed more than 10,000 posters for display around the state asking citizens to report promptly information about suspected livestock rustling and deer poaching cases.

Guilt fixed in fish kill

ST. CHARLES- The owner of a St. Charles County trailer park has been found guilty in magistrate court of causing a fish kill Aug. 23 by emptying two sewage lagoons into Belleau Creek.

The incident resulted in the death of an estimated 26 green sunfish in two miles of the small stream near O'Fallon. Department of Conservation water quality biologist Dick Duchrow found lethal quantities of ammonia in the water below the trailer park.

Magistrate Albert Ermeling gave the trailer park owner a six month suspended jail term and a one year probation.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Al Michaels, the radio voice of the Cincinnati Reds for the past three seasons, will leave to broadcast San Francisco Giants games next year, The Cincinnati Enquirer reported in its Saturday editions.

Red Heads' romp

LILBOURN-- The All-American Red Heads women basketball stars breezed past the LHS faculty here Friday night 86- 68 and helped initiate the Southeast Missouri cage season.

Despite the claims and predictions of Larry "Ajax" Warren, Lilbourn's famed coach, the women completely ruled the game and made easy work of their rotund, over- weight and out-of- shape opponents.

It was reported that the men all fouled out before the end of the game as 52 fouls were issued against them. One official handed out eight, 15- yard penalities for holding.

"They were fantastic," Warren exclaimed. "We couldn't stop them."

Warren collected only two points during the contest, the big star fouled out in the opening 10 seconds of the game. "He just couldn't keep his hands off the girls," one official replied.

Alan Rand, Lilbourn custodian, led the host in scoring with 14 points.

The Red Heads rolled up an 18- 14 first quarter lead and romped over the men behind the one- two scoring and rebounding punch of Barbara Logan and Rose Clark who scored 24 and 26 points respectively.

Donnie Westmoreland, game official, got into the scoring act for the Red Heads when he scored a free throw for them.

"We'll get em next season," a disappointed Warren claimed.

Dexter overpowers Dogs

DEXTER — Coach Clyde Vaughn's DHS Bearcats chewed on the Sikeston Bulldogs for their homecoming meal here Friday night and a 28-12 victory.

Dexter had too much offensive power for the Bulldogs and after two long scoring plays in the first half the Bulldog offense collapsed.

Two costly fumbles by the Dogs were the possible deciding factor in the game as Dexter fell on a bobble in midfield and promptly marched down field with quarterback Don Backfish throwing a scoring strike to Mike Cooksey in the endzone to put the Bearcats back in front 7-6. Sikeston drove deep into Bearcat territory again in the second period only to loose possession and a possible touchdown on a fumble of a pitchout.

After Dexter roared out in front 7-6 the Bulldogs came right back as Greg Colwick broke down the left sidelines and showed the Bearcats nothing but heels and elbows as the flashy halfback raced 55 yards for his second touchdown of the game.

Colwick had scored the first Sikeston TD on a 46 yards pass from Rick Blankenship. Both extra point tries were blocked by the rushing Bearcat line.

Dexter took the kickoff and promptly began to march through the Bulldog defenders chewing up large hunks of yardage with each carry. The Bearcats charged over from seven yards out to take a 14-12 lead into the dressing room which they never relinquished.

Dexter took the second half kickoff and marched down field through the pourous Bulldog defense and scored their third touchdown of the game on a pass from Don Backfish on a rollout play.

Disregarding the two costly fumbles in the first half which could have conceivably cost the Bulldogs 14 points as Dexter scored once and stopped Sikeston from scoring on the other, a big turning point in the game came after Dexter had taken a commanding 21-12 lead as Sikeston took the kickoff and marched down field, primarily on a long pass play, Sikeston was held a half yard short of a first down on a fourth and one situation by the fired up Bearcat line.

Dexter had their offensive game in high gear throughout the contest as Backfish completed 7-12 passes and had 16 first downs in the game. Sikeston completed only 4-14 and rushed for only seven first downs.

Roy Bowman was again a standout defensive tackler for the Bulldogs as the rugged middle linebacker made Dexter feel his presence in the game with 13 tackles to his credit.

Tigers' North streak ended

POPLAR BLUFF — Coach Tom Telle's PBHS Mules pulled off one of the biggest upsets of the season in southeast Missouri here Friday night as they squeaked by the Cape Girardeau Central Tigers, 29-28 on a two point conversion with three minutes left in the game.

It was the first conference football defeat the Tigers have suffered in the northern division since the 1968 season. The loss dimmed the hopes of a repeat as division champions for the once invincible Bengals and made the Mules a solid favorite to take the conference title.

Poplar Bluff led the Tigers out in front in the second period on a 13 yard carry after a scoreless first period. Cape held a 7-0 lead at the half.

The Mules tied the score in the third period as John Moss broke loose for a 71 yard scoring run. The Tigers Bill Seabaugh hit Kevin Cramer with an 11 yard touchdown pass to give the Tigers a 14-7 lead. Steve Cash plunged over from two yards out to tie the score at 14-14 at the end of the third quarter.

Early in the fourth period Seabaugh hit Steve Taylor for 47 yards. The Mules were not to be counted out as Cash came right back to score from the two yard line.

Bill Seabaugh fired a scoring pass to Taylor to give the Tigers a 28-21 advantage but Poplar Bluff quarterback John Casey shot a pass to Mike Pearson for a 63 yard score with three minutes left on the scoreboard clock to end the Tiger streak.

CHS scores shutout

KENNETT — Coach Joe Black's Charleston Blue Jays are still flying high as they kept their hopes for a nothern division title alive by shutting out the Indians 14-0 here Friday night for their sixth straight victory and sixth consecutive shutout.

The Bluejays are also eyeing a 3A state playoff berth but must dispose of a tough Jackson Indian squad later in the campaign.

The Charleston team has put together an unpenetrable defense and a power runner named J. J. Black for an unbeatable combination thus far in 1973.

The Bluejays found the Kennett Indians a formidable foe as J. J. Black and company were unable to score in the first quarter and 11 minutes and 10 seconds had elapsed in the second period before Black sprinted 10 yards after a sustained drive by the Blue Jay offensive crew. The try for the two point conversion was stopped and Charleston led 6-0 at the intermission.

Charleston took the second half kickoff and with 7:29 remaining in the third period, Junior Delay fired a scoring strike to Ricky Smoot for a 12-0 lead and Black scored on a two point conversion from the six yard line for the final score.

Defense was the name of the game the rest of the way as each team played hard nose football for the next 15 minutes. Charleston holds their homecoming against rival East Prairie next Friday night.

Bulldogs rally

CAIRO, Ill. — The Portageville, Mo., Bulldogs came from behind to defeat the Cairo Pilots, 22-16, here Friday night.

The first quarter was scoreless and in the second quarter the Pilots scored on a 65 yard pass play, C. Jackson carried the ball for the 2 point conversion. At the half the score was 8-0.

C. Jackson started the third quarter off with a touchdown on a 50 yard pass play and he also scored on the 2 point conversion. Portageville scored it's first TD on a 63 yard pass play from Workman to Johnson. Billy Gibson scored the extra point on a 2 point conversion play.

The fourth quarter saw nothing but Portageville TD's with Robert Daily starting it off with a five yard run with Barry Richardson carrying the ball for the 2 point conversion. Merlin Thomas scored next on a 4 yard run with 2½ minutes left in the game. The extra point attempt failed with the final score 22-6.

St. vincent

PERRYVILLE — St. Vincents played their first home game after four on the road and enjoyed the friendly surroundings as they downed Fredericktown 14-0 Friday night.

Dick Wengert scored the first touchdown in the second period on a nine yard run and Eddie Siegmund threw a halfback pass to Richard Hoover for the second score.

Sports

CLEVLENAD (AP) — Cleveland Finance Director Andrew Putka Friday said his patience has run out and if the Cleveland Indians do not pay the $144,238 owed the city by the end of the month he will send the matter to the law department.

Some of the bills go back to February," Putka said. "I think we've been extremely patient."

The breakdown of the debts is $102,455 for rent, utilities and services of the stadium, $23,783 for real property taxes and about $18,000 for parking rent.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League have purchased newspapers ads, urging fans to attend their home games.

The two column by four inch box is addressed to season ticket holders and asks, "We need you out at the Met ... not at the set."

Since all Viking home games at Metropolitan Stadium are sellouts, the games are locally televised.

"We want those people out there," said General Manager Jim Finks. "The fans are a very important part of our operation."

NEW YORK — Infuriator, $10.80, held onto a stretch lead to score a head victory over Imperator in the $8,000 feature at Aqueduct.

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth takes on the Lake Waco Country Club course again today seeking to stretch her one-point lead in the second round of the $25,000 Wacon Tribune-Herald Golf Classic.

Mayor serious about not seeking re-election

CARUTHERSVILLE — For more than 18 months, Caruthersville Mayor Bill Inman has been trying to tell people he was not going to seek a second term in April.

"Most people treated it as a joke," the 39- year - old Inman said. "They acted like I was just playing politician. Now maybe they'll believe me."

If events work out as he expects, the mayor said, he will leave office "several months before next spring's election to take an industrial development post with either a state agency or a private industry.

During the 3½ years he has been mayor, Inman said, he concentrated on trying to attract industry to the area, "and some of the people who represent the kind of activity I want to get involved in are asking me if I'm serious about not running for re-election.

"Since I've assured them I am serious about it, I've started getting job offers. Some of them are looking awfully good."

Inman said there are three primary reasons he will not seek re-election: He has no political aspiration; being mayor has exhausted his finances; and he thinks he can help the area more industrially from a nonpolitical base.

He described himself as a "fluke mayor" who really didn't think he could unseat the veteran B. F. 'Hot' Rogers when he ran against him in the spring of 1970.

"During the campaign I got a chance to say some of the things I had been thinking about a long time, as far as what this area ought to do to regain the economic position we were in 20 years ago," he said.

When he found himself in office, Inman said, "I guess I proceeded to stir up a hornet's nest."

He found that the city and the Bootheel "had a pretty poor reputation with industrial development specialists.

"The city, at least, had no liaison with the state capital, no communication with federal agencies. There were some national and some international industries that would not come to Caruthersville because of the way they had been treated in the past."

While his critics may not agree that he gave the city "intelligent leadership," the mayor said, "no one can deny that I gave energetic leadership.

"I went after the funds that would benefit this town and this area. And I'm happy to say that the city of Caruthersville never failed to obtain any federal grant we went after."

The city has adopted a system of codes and ordinances, including zoning regulations. It hired a city administrator. It became involved in urban renewal. Streets were upgraded. Private home building took an upsurge.

On an area scale, the mayor said, he helped form the Bootheel Industrial Development Commission that has, to some degree, united the six-county Bootheel in its search for more industrial employment.

"I don't know if I've accomplished all that much, really, but at least I think I've helped define some of our problems."

In the process, he said, "I've drained my finances and penalized my family.

"Not being a wealthy person when I got this job, and being a lot worse off economically than I was before, I'm going to have to do something about it.

"If I had the dollars, and just liked a real good challenge, I'm not so doggone sure I wouldn't like to take (being mayor) on. But I don't have the dollars. I did not have the dollars when I started. I couldn't really afford to do what I've done."

With several firms negotiating for his expertise in industrial development, Inman said, "I find myself in the enviable position of being able to write my own job description and have folks bidding for my services."

Separated from politics, he said, he will be able to pursue the same type programs he has advocated during his tenure as mayor, "without people thinking that I'm doing these things for personal gain."

He has no intention of abandoning either the city of Caruthersville or the Missouri Bootheel, he said.

"I'm just going to be in a better position to help the area doing what I do best, working on community betterment and industrial development ... and without neglecting my family's needs."

Hayti City Council appoints 8 special election judges

HAYTI — Eight election judges, four for each ward in Hayti, were appointed and approved by the aldermen on the Hayti council at Monday night's City Council meeting. The judges will serve for the special police chief election Oct. 30.

The election was called after Police Chief Fritz McKay died Sept. 26 following a massive heart seizure.

Alderman H. R. Euell nominated Pat Barkovitz and Fred Chaffis judges. Alderman Dale Williams nominated S. J. Vincent and Berry Harder. Alderman John Turnage nominated George Klinkhardt and Monroew McCrary. Alderman Byron Tinsley nominated Mary Bishop and Pete Lannie. All were approved.

There was some discussion concerning additional personnel for the police department. It was decided to wait until after the election before acquiring another policeman.

The council decided to issue special police commissions to 13 members of the Pemiscot County sheriff's patrol. These men are George Klinkhart, Harry Garner, James Olney, Joe Darnell, Harold Parkinson, Jerry Grogan, Steve Shelly, Edward Davis, Barney Greenwell, Billy Hopkins, Norman Howell, Joe Joyner and Lawrence Douglas.

The commissions will expire Dec. 31, and will be renewed yearly thereafter.

After discussion, a motion was made by Alderman Williams and seconded by Alderman Tinsley to pay the county landfill $862.50 for the month of August and $775 for the month of September. This payment is based on $7.50 per truck load taken to the landfill. The motion passed.

During the discussion, Williams took exception with the County Court for using revenue-sharing funds to pave county roads and not for landfill purposes.

"I don't think the county should use revenue- sharing funds to blacktop county roads since we are paying a county road tax, he said.

Alderman Turnage said that "these are some of the things we can point out if the County Court would meet with us."

It was decided to update a city ordinance pertaining to street cutting by changing the charges for cutting streets. On a vote by the council, it was decided to change the following charges: dirt street, from $5 to $10; gravel street, from $10 to $20; blacktop or oilmat street, from $25 to $50; concrete street, from $50 to $100; and hot mix asphalt, $10.

Nursing program meets accrediting requirements

POPLAR BLUFF — Dr. Jack D. Vincent, Vice President of Three Rivers Community College, has been advised that the college has met all the requirements for accredited schools of professional nursing for the school year of 1973-74. This recognition was granted by the Missouri State Board of Nursing.

A nursing program is considered for full accreditation after its first class has graduated and successfully completed the State Board Test Pool Examination. The Missouri State Board of Nursing accredits newly established programs after thoroughly reviewing the various facets of the college.

The Three Rivers Community College Nursing Program was first organized in February, 1971, by Paul H. Hillis, Dean of Occupational Education, and Mrs. Katherine Lutes, Director of Nursing Education. A plan of organization and administration of the program was submitted to the Missouri State Board of Nursing for approval. The plan was granted provisional accreditation, which meant that the college could proceed to establish the nursing program as an integral part of the college.

Twenty students were admitted to the first class in the fall semester, 1971. Nineteen students graduated in May, 1973, with the degree of Associate in Applied Science in Nursing, sixteen of whom were honor students.

The college was visited by the accrediting team from the State Board of Nursing in August, 1973. The Director, along with the nursing faculty, Mrs. George Basham, Mrs. Richard Snyder, and Mrs. Lloyd McVaney, met with the accrediting team to examine and explain the extent to which the philosophy and objectives of the curriculum had been achieved. The Directors of Nursing Service at each clinical agency utilized by the college met with the team for the purpose of discussing the learning experiences offered to the students by the agency.

Two attending Stephens

COLUMBIA — Marsha Elizabeth Dement daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eston Eugene Dement of 704 Allen Blvd., Sikeston, and Bonnie Jean Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Robert Harris of 110 Winter Drive, Sikeston, are students at Stephens College this year, joining nearly 1,850 women representing all 50 states and several foreign countries.

Stephens is an undergraduate women's college offering bachelor of arts, bachelor of fine arts and associate of arts degrees in a number of fields. A three- year baccalaureate degree option and a college- wide modular curriculum will be implemented in January 1974.

Special events at Stephens during the 1973-74 year will include the annual parents' weekend, Oct. 26-28, one of the largest at any women's college in the country.

Bloomfield Halloween parade set

BLOOMFIELD — The Chamber of Commerce sponsored Halloween parade is scheduled Oct. 31 at 1:35 p.m.

Grade school children will march up Highway J from school, up Prairie Street to the courthouse, where judges will give prizes for the prettiest, ugliest and most unusual costumes.

The junior high school band will lead the parade.

Frank Sifford, committee chairman has announced that 18 Bloomfield merchants have consented to have their windows painted in beautiful Halloween scenes by the Bloomfield art classes under the direction of Ivy Bailey.

The windows will be painted on Oct. 27 and judged for prizes on Halloween.

Towns to hold joint meeting

WYATT — The city of Wyatt and the village of Wilson City will hold a joint public hearing Nov. 13 at 7 p.m. to discuss proposed sanitary sewage systems for the adjoining communities and assess the environmental impace on the area.

The proposed systems are recommended in the comprehensive plan adopted by both towns and are intended to eliminate existing groundwater pollution and make indoor sanitary facilities available to the residents of both communities.

Mayors Lommie Lane of Wilson City and Hunter Raffety of Wyatt said the public may attend the hearing and comment on the proposed systems.

Lemmons awarded credit by testing

Thomas Grant Lemmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Lemmons of Route One, was among 199 students at Abilene Christian College in Abilene, Tex. who were awarded at least three hours of college credit by examination for the 1973-74 school year.

Thomas received six hours of credit in English and four hours of credit in French prior to registration on Sept. 3. A 1973 graduate of Sikeston High School, he is currently a freshman accounting major at ACC.

ACC awards advanced credit by examination in three national- level programs, the English essay examination and the music theory placement test. A total of 931 hours of advanced credit was awarded to ACC students this year.

Africa's Kalahari region bushmen never take women on a hunt or allow them to touch arrows. They believe that to do either brings bad luck.

ASCS holds service awards ceremony

The Scott County Agriculture Stabilization & Conservation Service last week presented pins for length of service to committeemen and employes. The three members of the ASC County Committee, the compliance supervisor and an office employee were present to receive their awards. The awards were presented by other ASC employes and the county executive director.

Roy Proctor, of Benton member of the county committee, received a tie tack inscribed with the ASC insignia for his 16 years of service to Scott County farmers as county committeeman, community committeeman and field employee. Proctor, began his ASC work in 1957.

Lapel pins representing 15 years of service were presented to Fletcher Withrow of Sikeston, Chairman of the ASC County Committee and Harry Lee Showmaker of Charleston, compliance supervisor. Withrow began his service with ASCS as a field employe in 1958, being promoted to community committee in 1959 and to his present position as county committee chairman in 1963. Withrow will resign from the County Committee effective the end of this year.

Showmaker began as a farm reporter in 1958 and served in that capacity as well as community committeeman representing Tywappity Township until 1967 when he was employed as compliance supervisor for Scott County. Showmaker remains a member of the Community Committee and also is first alternate to the ASC County Committee.

Jim Dumey of the Sikeston area was presented a tie tack for his 10 years of ASCS service. Dumey was first elected to the Richland Township Community Committee in 1963 and also served as farm reporter for that area. In January of 1973, he was elected to the ASCS County Committee and now holds the position of vice chairman of that committee.

Rosalie Bollinger of Benton was the only county office employe to receive a length of service award during the ceremony. A 10 year charm was presented by Kenneth Vowels, of Sikeston, county executive director, for Miss Bollinger's service as ASCs program clerk since January of 1963.

The County ASCS Office administers government farm programs and is located in Benton.

OFF THE GRASS!

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Cars parked in front yards are now a "public nuisance" in Kalamazoo.

The new ordinance, designed for "preserving residential neighborhoods," does not include paved driveways.

Tie tack presented

Jim Dumey of Sikeston was recently presented a tie tack in an awards ceremony at the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service Office for his 10 years of service. Presenting Dumey's award was Mrs. Janis Vogel.

Receiving charm

Rosalie Bollinger of Benton received a 10- year charm for her service as ASCS program clerk since January of 1963. Presenting her award is Kenneth Vowels, of Sikeston county executive director.

Service pin awarded

Harry Lee Showmaker of Charleston, compliance supervisor received a lapel pin representing 15 years of service to the Scott County ASCS. Presenting the award was Mrs. Leda Wagner of Charleston.

Proctor receives award

Roy Proctor, of Benton, member of the Scott County Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service Committee received a tie tack from Gloria Haney of Benton for his 16 years of service to Scott County farmers as county committeeman, community committeeman and field employe.

15 year award

Fletcher Withrow of Sikeston, chairman of the Scott County Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service Committee is presented a pin by Rosalie Bollinger of Benton for his 15 years of service to the ASCS Office.

Bollinger to speak at fund-raiser

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Rep. Richard Bolling of Kansas City will be the keynote speaker at a Cape Girardeau County Democratic fund-raiser tonight.

Rep. Bill D. Burlison will introduce Bolling. Bolling has served longer in Washington than any other Missourian presently in the House or Senate (25 years). Bolling is a member of the Rules Committee and is expected to be chairman soon. He served on the Democratic Policy and Steering Committee and is next in line to be chairman of the Joint Economic Committee. He is serving as chairman of the select committee now drafting legislation for reform in the House committee system.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Oct. 20th, the 293rd day of 1973. There are 72 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1918, Germany accepted U.S. terms to end World War I and ordered German submarines to their home bases.

On this date—

In 1632, the English architect, Sir Christopher Wren, was born in Wiltshire, England.

In 1740, Maria Theresa became ruler of Austria, Hungary and Bohemia.

In 1873, the showman P.T. Barnum opened the Hippodrome in New York City.

In 1941, during World War II, a state of siege was declared in Moscow.

Motorists mar ground

Some motorists on South Kingshighway in Sikeston don't seem to know the road from the grass at this curve south of Kingshighway Plaza Shopping Center. Where the street formerly went straight before the relocation of the South Y intersection of Highway 61 and Business Route 61, now some of the drivers do. Since there are no barriers or guard rails to block the old roadway, some southbound motorists drive off the road down a nearly three -foot incline. (Daily Standard Photo by Tim Ludwig)

Kissinger enroute to Moscow No. 1.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sent a private message to Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev today, after dispatching Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to Moscow for talks on "means to end the hostilities in the Middle East."

The White House said Kissinger was sent to the Soviet capital at the request of Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist party leader. Flying with him were Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador, and nine American officials.

The trip evidently was touched off by Premier Alexei N. Kosygin's four-day visit to Cairo for talks with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. Kissinger is known to believe that the Kosygin call had advanced prospects for an end to the fighting between Israel and Egypt and Syria.

The attitude Israel takes could be decisive to any hopes for a negotiated settlement, even if Washington and Moscow reach a consensus on a ceasefire proposal. With its forces advancing on the Egyptian front the Israeli government may resist an early halt to the fighting.

"No one has put a peace proposal to us yet," said Israeli sources here Friday. Abba Eban, Israel's foreign minister, was called home for consultation.

Kissinger took off on the surprise trip at 1:50 a.m. (EDT). He was due in Moscow at about 8 p.m. (1 p.m. EDT).

The secretary of state had attended until close to midnight a dinner given for him by Huang Chen, head of the Chinese liaison office, as a sendoff for a sixth visit to Peking. Kissinger did not tip his hand publicly. He even paused to sign an autograph for an admirer before stepping into his black limousine.

Before leaving the hotel he briefed Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and House Speaker Carl Albert in a banquet office sealed off by four stocky Secret Service men.

Kissinger had been scheduled to take off for the Far East on Monday, stopping en route in Tokyo for talks with Japanese leaders about their country's role in a prospective new relationship between the United States and western Europe.

White House sources said he would be in Moscow "a matter of days." They indicated that he would return to Washington in time to depart for China in midweek. Kissinger plans to stop in Japan at the end of the month on the way home.

3 seek office of police chief

HAYTI — Three men are seeking the office of Hayti police chief left vacant by the death of Fred M. (Fritz) McKay.

Those who have filed for the Oct. 30 special election to choose McKay's successor are Hayti Police Lt. Kermit Ledbetter, 33; Sherman Manley, 32, a licensed practical nurse at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital and a former member of the police force; and George Camp, 53, a Hayti auto dealer.

The deadline for filing was Monday.

Ledbetter has been with the police department for more than eight years. He ran unsuccessfully against McKay in the April election. The council, at the urging of Mayor Lee Roy Bain, appointed Ledbetter interim police chief in a special session following McKay's death.

When you are simmering a small fresh beef brisket, cover it with water and add salt, onion and celery leaves. Count on cooking it for 30 to 35 minutes per pound. Sliced thin, the cold brisket will make delicious sandwiches.

He said insurance companies will not reduce their rates if a no-fault system is adopted. He pointed out that, in Massachusetts, before no-fault insurance was adopted, proponents were saying it could reduce rates by up to 50 per cent. Recently, however, the state had to force the insurance companies to make a rate reduction. And that reduction was only about two per cent.

One of the legislators responded that while the reduction was minor, insurance rates in Massachusetts have not been rising like those in the rest of the county.

Meyer suggested regulating the insurance companies to force a rate of reduction.

Sikeston insurance agent Bill Huff defended the concept by saying it will lead to easier and more prompt payment of claims. He said it shouldn't be called no-fault, it should be called direct payment.

"We face a growing number of cases where no one is satisfied with the results," he said. In a large number of cases, fault is hard to deterine, he said, and no one is happy with the results.

He suggested that the insurance companies be required to make monthly payments to disabled persons rather than wait until the end of the illness for all the bills to come in. If the company doesn't pay on time, he said, the firm should be made to pay a penalty.

Attorney Charles Cable of Kennett said the no-fault system will not solve the delay in payments. Insurance companies will try to find ways to keep from paying all claims, he said.

He suggested that the bill include provisions requiring insurance companies to pay the plaintiff's attorney fees if one of its policy holders files suit for payment.

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Sheriff's deputy Pete Maggard had reason to be peeved while investigating a burglary at a nearby trailer court.

Maggard said he returned to his patrol car to find that someone had removed the red light from atop the vehicle. Officials said the light was found smashed a few miles down the highway several hours later.

SeMo U. administrators agree to culture center

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) — Administrators at Southeast Missouri State University have agreed to form a black culture center on the campus and establish a committee to look into a list of grievances and demands presented by black students.

The agreement Friday ended demonstrations by the Association of Black Collegians on the campus that began Wednesday over a purported demeaning statement on the student's manner of dress voiced by Mark Scully, president of the school.

The demonstrations resumed Thursday after Scully denied making the remark and refused to apologize for it. The students then submitted their list of demands, which were eventually resolved Friday in a meeting between ABC representatives and Dean Carroll Walker.

ABC President Roger Cayce said Friday, however, there will be ill feeling toward Scully until an apology is received.

Tinnin to be guest speaker

BERNIE — State Sen. Nelson B. Tinnin of Hornersville will be guest speaker for a public meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in the school cafeteria scheduled as part of the observance of American Education Week.

During the week, several events are planned in recognition of the national celebration. Community Teacher Association president Cliff Manlove and Mrs. Jeanette Stone are co-chairman for the event.

9:00 ABC—STREETS OF SAN FRANCISCO— Hour long dramatic adventure series about a city and its people as seen through the eyes of two policemen starring Karl Malden as Detective Lt. Mike Stone and Michael Douglas as Assistant Inspector Steve Keller. The series is filmed on location in San Francisco. Tonight's episode is "Harum." Guest stars Rick Nelson, once the epitome of the clean- cut All- American boy, who stars as the leader of a ring of baby prostitutes who get killed if they get out of line. Also starring are Kay Lenz, Darlen Carr, and Laurette Spang

9:00 NBC— FOLLIES— Headliners are Sammy Davis, Jr., Don Adams, Frankie Avalon, Michele Lee and Don Rickles.

10:30 CBS— LATE MOVIE— "R. P.M.*Revolutions per Minute" Starring Anthony Quinn, Ann Margret. The story concerns the turbulent life of a "today" college campus and a newly appointed college president with a background from Spanish Harlem and a zest for life and youth. But even he is forced to watch in despair as police and student taunts turn into full- scale violence.

The Flip Wilson Show

Geraldine (Flip Wilson) goes to Trinidad with guest Harry Belafonte and comedians Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber on the Thursday, Oct. 25, colorcast of NBC Television Network's "The Flip Wilson Show" (8- 9 p.m. NYT).

Belafonte sings "Empty Chairs" (accompanied by Sivuca on the guitar) and "Hole in de Bucket" (accompanied vocally by Ms. Falumi Prince). With Flip, Harry tries to be a shill for a tie salesman.

Burns and Schreiber offer an encore of their computer routine, with questions from the audience. In the finale, Geraldine visits Trinidad, where the entire cast becomes involved in the song, "Coconut."

:00 CBS— FRIDAY NIGHT MOVIE— "Beneath the Planet of the Apes" Starring James Franciscus, with Charlton Heston. In the sequel to "Planet of the Apes", Franciscus plays Brent, an American astronaut who is sent on a trajectory through time and space to locate a missing spaceship. It is the year 3955, and the apes who control the society where Brent's mission leads him chase him into the underground caverns of the forbidden zone, where the remnants of a strangely human society exists. Brent realizes his trajectory has taken him full circle to earth and that the human civilization he had known no longer exists.

8:00 NBC— NEEDLES AND PINS— Starring Norman Fell as dress designer Nathan Davidson and Deirdre Lenihan as naive dress designer Wendy Nelson.

'Sanford and Son'

Lamont (Demond Wilson) and Julio (Gregory Sierra) go into the used- auto- parts business and this drives Fred (Redd Foxx) to skid row, in "Fuentes, Fuentes, Sanford and Chico," on "Sanford and Son," Friday, Oct. 26 (8- 8:30 p.m. NYT, in color), on the NBC Television Network.

Fred thinks Lamont's new venture means his son is deserting their partnership, so he moves into a skid row mission to make Lamont feel bad. Lamont's tactics are not exactly what Fred expected.

The hobos in this episode are played by men who shared Redd Foxx's leanest year in Los Angeles, a time when the best job Foxx could get was painting signs on store windows. The segment was written by Gene Farmer and directed by Jack Shea.

8:30 NBC— BRIAN KEITH— Starring Brian Keith as pediatrician Dr. Jamison and Shelley Favares as his doctor daughter, Anne.

8:30 ABC— ADAM'S RIB— Ken Howard and Blythe Danner star in this sophisticated, romantic comedy series about present day marriage. NBC SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES: "Chisum"-- A rancher must defend his vast cattle empire against a scheming, violent businessman. John Wayne, Forrest Tucker and Christopher George star. (Color)

Academy Award- winner Johny Wayne stars with Forrest Tucker and Christopher George in "Chisum," a Western drama to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" Oct. 27 (9- 11:15 p.m. NYT) on the NBC Television Network.

(Wayne was named Best Actor of 1970 for his performance in "True Grit.")

In New Mexico in 1878, John Simpson Chisum (Wayne), owner of a vast cattle empire, is enjoying the fruits of his labor over the past decade.

Chisum now must meet head on Lawrence Murphy (Tucker), a crafty business type who is trying to dominate the region by foreclosing farm mortgages, refusing to honor water rights and bribing public officials. Above all, he wants Chisum's land.

When Murphy blocks the supply route to Chisum's ranch and hires professional killers to achieve his aims, Chisum recruits friends to help him fight the threat.

The 1970 Warner Bros. release was produced by Andrew J. Fenaday. Andrew V. McLaglen directed Fenaday's screenplay.

NBC- TV will begin 1974 by presenting the 85th annual Tournament of Roses Parade Tuesday, Jan. 1 (11:30 a.m. to 1:45 p.m. NYT). This year's parade theme is "Happiness Is..." and each of the 60 floats in the line of march will represent a different facet of the theme. Charles M. Schulz, creator of the "peanuts' gang of loveable characters, will be the Grand Marshal. The Rose Queen and her court of six Rose Princesses, celebrities, and marching bands also will participate in the annual holiday event in Pasadena, Calif. NBC- TV was the first network to televise the Rose Parade (Jan. 1, 1952) and has continued to do so every year since.

BURT REYNOLDS SHOWS
Six Late- Night Entertainment Programs on the NBC Television Network
(In Color, 10:30 p.m.- 12:00 midnight)

Burty Reynolds will star in six late- night entertainment programs to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network during the 1973- 74 season.

The 90- minute shows will be presented Saturday or Sunday nights from 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. NYT, on approximately a one- a- month basis starting this Fall.

Henry Jaffe Enterprises and Reynolds's B. R. Productions will produce the programs with Henry Jaffe serving as executive producer.

"The programs will be produced at different locations around the country or abroad," Jaffe said. "Each will be a 'special event' rather than a traditional television special. We will be presenting as 'anything-can- happen' talk/variety show, produced wherever Burt happens to be and whenever he is available.

"In each one, Burt will participate in a number of activities geared to the particular location, and his background as an athlete and a stunt man, as well as a performer, will be called upon.
